Jessica L. Pace

From an early age Jessica has always thrived the most when she was in the spotlight. It was not until her adult years that she entered into the acting world professionally. At the age of 26, she began to act in theater productions. She even traveled to Los Angeles to perform in a stage play that traveled to different states. Once married in 2010, Jessica put acting on the back burner to care for her family. In 2016, Jessica's marriage was dissolved and she longed to get back to the acting she loved. Since her divorce, Jessica has been in two stage plays "Waiting to Exhale" where she played Kathleen, John's mistress, and "Dear Diary, He Beats Me Because He Loves Me", where she played one of the lead characters named Shalita. She has recently ventured into the world of film and has been a part of 4 films, 3 of which she is credited on IMDb and one that is still in production. Lastly, Jessica has expanded her acting skills in podcast as well. Her character Kia was introduced in the second season of Indy Star's Best Podcast of 2018 titled "Black Widow"

Jessica currently resides in Indianapolis, Indiana with her 3 daughters. She loves children and often volunteers at her church. She teaches 6th grade full-time at a public school. Jessica loves the arts, poetry, cooking, and relaxing in her free time. She can be reached at 317-468-5556 or jlp8016@yahoo.com
